Note:

Practicum denotes practical education experience within a course. The emphasis within a practicum is the practice of specific ministry skills. This may take place in a classroom, chapel, a local church, or other appropriate setting. Practicums may vary in number of hours from 20 to 70 hours.

Field Education denotes 20 hours of practical education experience within a course that takes place outside of the regular classroom setting. The emphasis in field education is learning that takes place through interaction with people and organizations related to the field of study.

Immersion denotes at least 50% of class time will take place outside of the traditional classroom setting. Immersions typically involve more field education than practicum.

A denominational history course can count for the additional church history course.
